Rich in biodiversity and underwater heritage, Ras Shosha is a wall dive situated directly beneath the 'ras', or 'head', on the south-eastern tip of Jazirat Abu Shosha island.

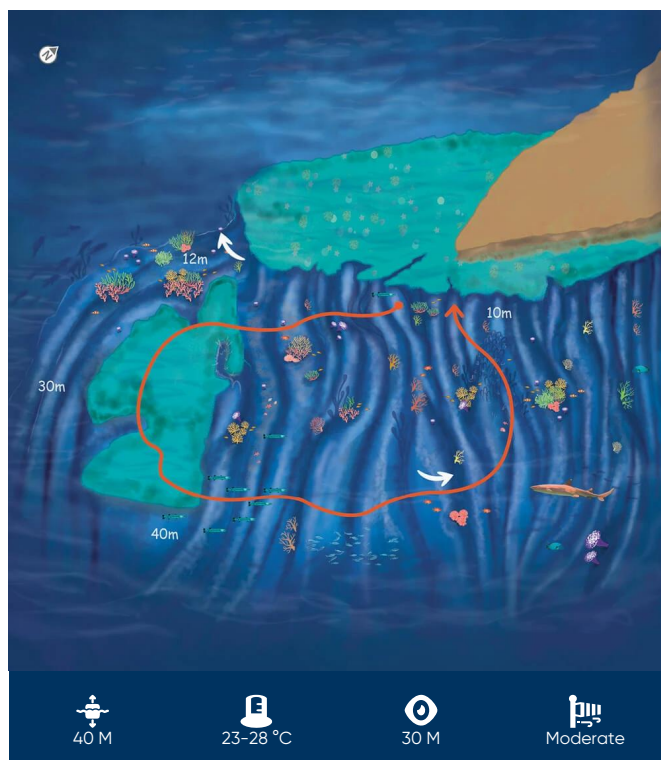

The sloping wall is covered in vibrant, jewel-like corals and bustles with activity. Divers can expect to see sergeant major, white-tip reef sharks and the curious Humphead wrasse, also known as Napoleon wrasse thanks to the distinctive bumps on their heads. The nickname is a nod to French Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte, who famously wore a bicorne hat.

Divers are also likely to spot fast-swimming predators like trevallies and barracudas. Best for advanced divers, the water surging against the point of the island splits the current, which flows in a mild easterly direction from 12m to 30m and transitions from west to east at 20m to 40m.
